The long healtation of the President was caused by considerations of the President was caused by considerations of expediency. It was a sep fraught with immense consequences. He exhausted all other means first. He watted patiently for eighteen months, and did all in his power to suppress the rebellion by the policy advocated by the Democrats. He put in the field 600,000 soldiers. A whole year of desperate fighting has passed away, without satisfactory results. The immediate results of this feeling are measures of great severity to ward the blacks, who are being sent south without reference to their legal condition. Several have been hung in the vicinity of Jeffersonton, Va., charged with conspiracy. The Union white citizens of Winchester, too, are being sent in cot siderable numbers to Richmond.

ing the part of a tyraut, and should be over-thrown. This is what they would have said; and we appeal to the honest, un-prejudiced sense of every man who-knows what a Democratic speech in these days is, it this is not as true as holy writ! We tell Mr. Allen and all his trice that they are doing the work of the rebels more effectually than they could do for themselves, and that there is not a malignant in the South who is fired. not a malignant in the South who is fired with intense hate against the North, the with intense hate against the North, the Union and Freedom, who does not in his heart thank them for the ediptit should suffer the penalty of his crime. Teachers have never been popular in heart thank them for the efficiency with which they are serving the di-doyal cause. So much for the doctrines of the speech to which we refer. Now a word as to a question of fact:

Mr. Alten states, broadly, without reservation, and if as by his own knowledge, that Mr. Bates, the Attorney General of the United States and a member of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet, is of the opinion that the President's late proclamation is a violation of the Constitution; and on this statement the speaker justified his own mally. his negroes, to convey them to Musissippi to work on fortifications. Ward was protesting himself against this spollation, when one of them fired upon him, woneding him through the hips, it is supposed mortally.

The Montauk is 200 feet not ask him to believe us, but to be connot sak him to believe us, but to be con-vinced by facts as he can see them. If Mr. Bates' position is as Mr. Allen states, the President would have vacated his place and filled it by a man whose views are in consonance with his own, provided that Mr. Bates himself had not instantly acted upon the belief that he could not be a part of an Administration that, in a matter of such transcendent importance, was violating the fundamental law, and doing lucallable lejury to private rights. The President is not a man to be in opposition to the law officer of his Cabinet, on a question like this: and who that capcia shaped, and on the very top of it there question like this; and who that knows Edward Bates dares say that, for the paltry emoluments and easily carned henors of his office, he would do violence to his conscience and his oaths? Three Union Ladies Violated.

[From the Nashvile Usion]
We are hioraxed, on unimpeachable authority, of one of the most horrible and revolting crimes ever perpetrated on the soil of Tonessee. A party of geogliss, sive in number, belonging to Dick McGffar's command, it is said, went on inst Tuesday night to toe house of a highly respeciable citizen, about eight miles from Nashvills, on the Nubbin Ridge read, and violated the person of his wife and caughter in the most brutal manner. The rufflans, whose lust and revouge were still ussatiated, leaving this scene of horror, went to the house of a highly estimable widow in the vicinity and treated her in the same faudish manner. These families are both represented in Col. Stokes' cavaley, and the rebels, unable to revenge themselves on the men, slaked it to the uttermost on the persons of helpless families, their wives and daughters. The atroclous crime was committed on the prison of a respectable young woman, the daughter of an agod and loyal cettacu, and again in parce are blackened by the record of robel shame.
